[SOM-report no 2014:3]
The 2013 National SOM Survey

The SOM Institute is an independent research organization at the University of Gothenburg. Since 1986 The SOM Institute has been conducting annual self-administered mail back surveys in Sweden and in Swedish regions. Cross sectional probability samples of the adult population are asked questions about their media habits, leisure habits and their attitudes on different social issues. The SOM Institute is jointly managed by The Department of Political Science and The Department of Journalism, Media and Communication at the University of Gothenburg.

The fieldwork of the SOM surveys follows the same plan from one year to another. The main part of the data collection is conducted in the autumn. The questionnaires are posted to the sample at the end of September. During the fieldwork, several reminders are sent out by mail and SMS and respondents are also contacted by telephone. With the second reminder, the possibility to take the survey online is introduced. The fieldwork ends in February, giving the surveys a field period of approximately five months.

The response rate of the SOM surveys has been relatively high since the start in 1986. Like most other surveys, however, the response rate has been dropping during the last few years, particularly among younger people. The figure below shows the changes in response rate for the national SOM survey between the years 1986 and 2013.
