When doing a PhD, it is not uncommon that you meet a lot of smart and hard-working people in your daily routine. The department of economics at Gothenburg University is no exception in this sense, quite the contrary actually, and I am still amazed by the dedication people have for their research. But more importantly, the people I have met and worked with during the last five years at the department were extremely helpful and supportive, making my time here an extraordinary experience. Even though it was not always easy and I had occasional doubts about finishing the thesis, I am grateful for the opportunity to meet so many outstanding personalities.

First of all, I would like to thank my supervisors Ola Olsson and Åsa Löfgren for your support, guidance and encouragement during all these years. Even when I was stuck and had doubts about my research ideas, you both gave me the feeling that you had confidence in my thesis projects, which was invaluable to me.

Next I would like to thank my coauthors Lisa Bruttel, Werner Güth, Magnus Hennlock, Ralph Hertwig, Paul Lehmann, Michele Valsecchi and Conny Wollbrant. Working with all of you was extremely enriching and I have profited enormously from collaborating with you. I am also extremely grateful to the administrative staff at the department. Your helpfulness and efficient support has been essential in all these years. Special thanks to Åsa Adin, Katarina Forsberg, Selma Oliveira, Ann-Christin Räätäri Nyström, Karin Jonson, Elizabeth Földi and Christina Varkki. Also many thanks to Marie Andersson for helping me with all the practical details to get through the publishing process of the thesis.

I am grateful to Andreas, Christina, Haile and Ann-Sofie for the great company during many hours of econometrics exercise classes. I would like to thank the professors, post-docs and PhD students at the department for your expertise in seminars and the moral support in short and long chats on the corridor, especially Katarina Nordblom, Mitesh Kataria, Elina Lampi, Joe Vecci, Peter Martinsson, Fredrik Carlsson, Gustav Kjellsson, Lousie Granath, Joakim Ruist and Måns Söderbom. Thomas and Lena, you will always be role models for me with your hospitality and your relaxed and warm-hearted manner.

I would have never been able to finish the long period of intensive course work without the support of my PhD cohort. Thanks to Carolin, Hanna, Josephine, Lisa, Martin, Mikael, Tensay, Yashoda and Yuanyuan for all the time spent together. Andrea and Laura, meeting you was one of the best things during the PhD and I wish you all the best. For all the nice wonderful moments outside the office I would like to thank Kalle, Efi, Thanos, Ida, Po, Chris, Christina, Paul, Nadine, Marcela, Oana, Amrish, Simona, Simon, Laura, Melissa and Mourad.

Even though geographically distant, I had always the feeling that my friends from home were there for me when needed. Your visits and holidays together was an enormous source of energy much needed for dark and rainy winter days. Thank you Marian, Sonja, Jana, Ian, Deas, Chris, Mathieu, Nelli, Mareike, Lotta, Barbara, Kristin, Dirk and Thorsten for this.

Lastly, I would like to thank my family for all the support and being there for me. Verena and Matilda, you are the best that has happened to me. Thank you.
