

Think'st thou Kate to put me down?

A gentleman

Robert Jones

Think'st thou Kate to put me down with a no, or with a frown, since love Love commands the hands to dare when the tongue of speech is spare. Chief-est Fools are they that fainting flinch for a squeak, a scratch, a pinch. Wom-en's If thy Mist-ress swears she'll cry, fear her not, she'll swear and lie, such sweet holds my heart in bands, I must do, I must do, I must do as les - son in love's school; put it in, put it in, put it in ad - words have doubt - le sence: stand a - way, stand a - way, stand a - way a oaths no sor - row bring till the prick, till the prick, till the prick of love com - mands, I must do, I must ven - ture fool, put it in, put it simp - le fence, stand a - way, stand a - cons - cience sting, till the prick, till the do, I must do as love com - mands. in, put it in ad - ven - ture fool.

6

11

way, stand a - way a simp - le fence.
prick, till the prick of cons - cience sting.