

Acquired epilepsy in multiple sclerosis

A nationwide register-based investigation into prognosis and treatment

Acquired epilepsy is associated with increased morbidity and mortality, but its impact on multiple sclerosis (MS) is largely unknown. Using the Swedish MS register, we identified one of the largest cohorts of MS patients with epilepsy studied so far and carried out a series of register-based studies providing fresh insights into diagnosis, prognostic impact and treatment of epilepsy in MS.

Acquired epilepsy in multiple sclerosis

A nationwide register-based investigation into prognosis and treatment

Zamzam Mahamud